PRICE LIST

Read Carefully Before Ordering

This list supercedes all others and is good so long as my stock is not sold out.

Reference Dun's Commercial Agency and Farmers' National Bank.

If you do not find what you want listed in this folder ask me about it. I may have it or be able to get it for you.

Guaranteed—I guarantee my stock to be alive and in good condition when it leaves my care. After that it is entirely out of my control and I do not stand responsible for either safe arrival or the growth of the crop. The Express Company is responsible for unusual delays or accidents to stock while in their care. Claims must be made upon receipt of goods. Should any stock prove to be unsatisfactory, notify me within 3 days after its arrival at destination and I will try to satisfy you. I am just as much interested in your success as you are. It means more business for me.

Berry, Small Fruit and Flower Plants, also Shrubs and Trees under 3 feet, will be packed and delivered f. o. b. Topeka. All Trees and Shrubs 3 feet and over, if wanted shipped, add to the list price 50 cents for orders of $5 or under, and 25 cents for each additional amount of $5 or under.

If stock is a little dry on arrival, wet it thoroughly and bury it in moist soil until ready to plant.

Caution—Never wet the tops of Strawberry plants until ready to plant, it will cause damping off; wet lower part of roots only and heal in moist soil. Do not plant too deep the crown must have air.

PLANT STRAWBERRIES

From October 20 to May 10. If wanted earlier, Double the Price.

Plow or spade your soil in the fall or early spring. Plant as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring. For field culture plant one and one-half to two feet apart in the rows; rows three and one-half to four feet apart. Cultivate and hoe once a week until September 15. Mulch with hay or straw in December. For small patches plant twelve inches by eighteen inches. Keep all runners cut off. Mulch with leaves or lawn clippings. Loosen the soil between the plants with a grading fork or hoe three or four inches deep once a week.

Everbearing Progressive does the best for me, and for a small patch I would plant nothing else. Follow the above directions and if the season is wet you will have berries in abundance from May 20 to November.

If berries are desired in dry weather, mulch heavily very close to the plants. Cultivate and hoe between the rows and well up to the plants under the mulch. If possible water once every ten days by flooding the patch or letting water run or stand between the rows for at least two hours. The next day loosen the soil thoroughly two inches deep. The following day pulverize the soil with a garden rake or light harrow. Do not plant close to large trees or hedges.

PEONIES

Peonies are acknowledged to be the finest and most popular, hardy flower grown, that blooms about Decoration Day. I have a large collection of varieties to select from including all types and colors of standard, medium priced peonies.

Plant from September 1 to April 1, the earlier the better. Plant in rich well drained soil, spade 18 inches deep, do not put any fertilizer directly over the plants; plant with eyes 2 to 3 inches below the surface of the ground.

The terms 2-3 eye; 3-7 eye; 7-10 eye divisions or 1 yr.; 2 yr.; and 3 yr. old clumps are as indefinite, a description of the size of the plant offered, as a "piece of chalk" it may be a large or a very small one. My prices are for strong 3-7 eye divisions. This is the most popular size to plant. If planted in September, most of them will bloom in May. Larger clumps for sale at prices in proportion to size of plants wanted.

Young plants, and most plants, in a dry season, seldom develop normal blooms. The blooms are usually lacking in size, formation and in richness and in delicate colorings. Definite conclusions and notes should not be made until after the 3rd to 4th year after planting. A well grown Peony bloom is always pretty. A president of the "American Peony Society" said: "There are no really bad peonies." Soil and climatic conditions have a wonderful effect on the general appearance and behavior of the plant and bloom.
